Dr. Dengler To Speak on Next Friday Evening

His Seventh Visit To America Under Auspices Of Institute Of International Relations

At seven Friday evening, March 13, in Knowlton, Dr. Dengler who is the founder and director of the Austro-American Institute of Education in Vienna will speak. Dr. Dengler is a member of the Austrian Commission of the Institute of Intellectual Cooperation and also the Austrian representative of the New Education Fellowship, and a vice-president of the Home and School Federation. Together with Dr. Dottrens he edited the "New Education in Austria" and he has contributed numerous articles to scientific periodicals.

Dr. Dengler has frequently lectured throughout Europe at Educational Congresses and meetings. In the autumn of 1935 he lectured at various institutions in Great Britain. At six different occasions he has visited the U. S. and taught at several state and private universities. He also lectured in many American institutions, universities, colleges and in 1932 he served as Carnegie Visiting Professor at the state Universities of Kansas, Indiana, and Colorado, and in 1934 he was a member of the faculty of the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. Because of his extensive experience and traveling, Dr. Dengler's lecture should be of great interest to all.

Frederic C. Walcott, Commissioner of Public Welfare in Connecticut will speak on "Trends in Public Welfare" on March 17th at 4:00 in the Gymnasium as a guest of the Social Science Department.

"Native Birds" Is Subject For Ornithology Club

Do you know anything about the birds around you? Those of you who don't and those of you who are interested in our native birds will be especially interested in the lecture that the Ornithology Club is sponsoring this Thursday evening at 7:45. The subject of the talk will be "Our Native Birds—Permanent Residents and Spring Migrants". The lecture will be divided into four parts; Mrs. Kohl, a former student of Connecticut, will speak first, then Betty Wagner, Miss Hausman, and Nancy Hooker. The lecture will be illustrated by slides from the Yale Museum. This meeting is open to all, and everyone is cordially invited to attend the lecture.

The spring program of the club consists of field trips and trips to various bird sanctuaries. At the last meeting a resolution was passed to make the Connecticut College campus a bird sanctuary. The location and natural resources make it an ideal place for a sanctuary, and it is hoped that many more birds will nest here, and those that are here now will be protected. This will prove to be of great educational value inasmuch the birds, their habits, and life can be studied.

Nancy Hooker, in connection with her individual study in Ornithology, hopes to make several blinds so that the birds can be studied and watched at close range without their being aware that people are near. She has offered the members of the Ornithology Club the use of these blinds when they are completed.

This new club which was formed in the fall has, at present, thirty members, a third of which are students, a third faculty, and a third alumnae, professors' wives, and members of the administration. Membership to the club is still open.

Dean Sperry to Be Speaker At Vespers Sunday

The coming of Dean Willard L. Sperry of Harvard Divinity School to the campus is always one of the "events" of the college year. Thoroughly conversant with contemporary trends of thought, Dean Sperry represents a rare combination of critical intelligence with mystical insight, a fact illustrated by his ability to have written both his "Yes, But—" and his "Reality in Worship", two of his best known books. Dean Sperry was our baccalaureate speaker four years ago, and since that time has been a yearly visitor to our campus.

A Rhodes scholar, well known on both sides of the Atlantic, formerly head of the Andover theological seminary, a polished speaker, a man of wide learning and broad culture, and possessed of deep spiritual penetration, Dean Sperry is with good cause a visitor whose coming is eagerly awaited on many a college and university campus throughout the country.

Dr. Hale, Prominent Chemist Will Speak Here Friday Evening

Dr. William J. Hale, who, with his daughter, Ruth Hale, '39, is giving a large amount for the building of the new dormitory, will speak in Fanning on March 13, at 4 o'clock, on "The Recovery of Bromine from Sea Water". Dr. Hale is the director of Organic Chemical Research of the Dow Chemical Company. He has recently published a book entitled "Chemistry Triumphant", which has as one of its aims the familiarizing of the public with interesting facts about chemistry. The talk, which will be illustrated with moving pictures, should be particularly interesting. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Miss Van Vechten Interesting Talker

On Wednesday, March 4, Miss Anne Van Vechten, representative of the International Business Machines Company spoke to the secretarial classes and all seniors interested.

Miss Van Vechten talked especially about the accounting machines put out by the International Machine Company, and its spreading popularity throughout the United States. The machine is able to do accounting principles ten times faster than the manual way by means of a "punch card method." Such interesting procedures as selecting a chorus of all blonds for the movies

President Blunt Visits Alumnae, Schools on Trip

In her chapel talk on Tuesday, March 10, President Blunt spoke of her recent visit to eleven schools and three Connecticut College alumnae groups in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Washington. Miss Blunt was greatly impressed by the alumnae interest in the college, the faculty, the students' activities, and the buildings. She told them of the new courses offered, the Student-Faculty Forum, the new dormitory, and other recent developments.

There are three well-organized alumnae groups in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and Washington. They are contributing much to the progress of the college. It is hoped that all students will take an active part in their alumnae groups after graduation. Miss Blunt said that some schools she visited were greatly interested in Connecticut College and others knew less about it before her visit.

On her various visits President Blunt spoke on certain points she was asked to talk about by a group of undergraduates—the friendliness, beauty, and intellectual development of the college. She made it clear, however, that she was not seeking trade, because we have more applicants now than we had at this time last year. The college is interested mainly in good applicants.

The schools most interested in Conn. College were those whose own alumnae had returned from the college and had shown great enthusiasm for it. The support of graduates is needed to continue the progress of the college.

At the end of her talk President Blunt expressed her appreciation to the student body for its support during the recent difficulties.

Junior Banquet At the Mohican Saturday Night

Climax Of Mascot Hunt With Unveiling Of Mascot; Freshmen To Entertain Juniors

Saturday evening, March 14, at five-thirty, the Mascot Hunt officially ends to the relief of the Juniors and sorrow of the Sophomores. At six-thirty, the Juniors will gather on the roof of the Mohican Hotel donned in formal attire for the traditional Junior Banquet. After the Sophomore telegram has been read to a crowd of anxious listeners, a replica of the mascot will be unveiled by the chairman of mascot hunt who will explain the three clues and three decoys given during the course of mascot hunt. Murmurs of "I told you so", and "who could have guessed that" will be heard.

To soothe the nerves of the Juniors and Sophomores, the bewildered Freshmen will provide a series of entertainment.

One hundred and eleven Juniors are to be present at the momentous occasion with the following faculty members as guests: President Blunt, Dean Burdick, Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence, Dr. and Mrs. Erb, and Miss Brett.

Emroy Carlough, vice-president of the Junior class heads the committee for Junior Banquet. The other members of the committee include: Ellen Cronbach, Edith Burnham, Margaret Wellington, Marjorie Webb, Ruth Holmes, and Dorothy Harris.

A birthday party was given for Bethy Anderson a few days ago. It was supposed to be a surprise; but the news leaked out, and so Bethy helped plan her own party.

Sophomores Reveal Their Ideas Regarding Mascot Hunt Now On

Dear Diary:

Juniors Lead on The Bewildered Sophomores In Exciting Hunt

"There's the Shadow again!"

About the only thing we can say for the Sophomores is that they stick like glue. Even that, however, doesn't seem to get them anywhere. You see our class gives a gift to the college which is known only to us, and to make the secrecy more entertaining for others we leave clues around for the Sophomores. Three clues lead to the real thing and three are just decoys, but it's up to them to decide which is which. It's queer too, how they never seem to decide right. We thrust such lovely clues and decoys at them, and they just keep right on following us around and looking for the oddest things. They have been awfully fond of resting under our beds lately, but we discourage that because after all it might be draughty. They really ought to be very grateful to us for giving them so much exercise running around the campus and up and down stairs after basketball games.

Things have been pretty quiet this week, but they were right spry after the first basketball game, and, of course, now that there is so little time left they'll never give us any peace. When it gets to be Friday before our banquet at which the whole thing will come out, they'll be simply frantic. Their confidence is astounding and apparently boundless. "While there's life, there's hope" must be their motto.

To get back to the "Shadow"—she is a Sophomore assigned to a Junior, and when we drop a clue or

A Student's Diagnosis

A notable feature of the recent Student Government meeting was the generally expressed conviction that coupled with an Honor System must go a feeling of consideration and regard for the other members of the group. That students do recognize the importance of thoughtfulness, consideration and co-operation as the basis upon which a successful Honor System must be built, is commendable.

Very often, however, we see abstract theories, thoroughly understood as such, pathetically mutilated in their application. As students we like our Honor System, we enjoy its benefits, and feel pride in the responsibility that such a system has placed on us. Yet we become lax; we often forget that the best place to start applying that system (so cherished by all) is with ourselves. We fail to associate the noise of our radios, the booming of bath tub sopranos, the furor of occasional bull sessions with the ideal embodied in our Student Government. Consideration begins at home, and with us as individuals. It extends far beyond observance simply of quiet hours, into our relations with one another.

Agreeable relations with ones friends are rarely if ever attained thru selfish, inconsiderate behavior. Each individual, to a varying extent, takes a certain amount of initiative in maintaining her part of any relationship. Ideally, in a college community, this feeling of responsibility, this realization that individual initiative to assure the success of the end desired, is essential. And so the point to be fully appreciated and applied stands—that before we can have a thorough Honor System we must appreciate our responsibilities to the group. Mere appreciation, however, will allow the Honor System to remain little more than an illusion until the individual finds within herself the initiative to make it a practical reality.

What Do We Intend To do With Our Life Asks F. S. Morehouse

"In him was the life; and life was the light of men." This was the text of Frank S. Morehouse of St. James Church in New London. St. John's description of Christ shows Him not merely as a man but also as the light and life of the world. Two large questions arise from our practical application of this text. What is our conception of life, and what do we intend to do with life?

Our views on life are colored by our experiences. It seems rather paradoxical to have three doctors laboring in vain to save the life of one's brother while over seas thousands of men are losing theirs. The Reverend Bell in his Oh Men of God presents very clearly this problem of a groping, blundering people attempting to solve the questions of war, liquor, unemployment, and the like. We are more than intelligent beasts, and therefore should take hope for the future and seek a more buoyant outlook on life.

Most of us possess naive ideas of what we are going to do. We are very apt to lose heart when these preconceived ideas don't come true. We should forget this first disillusionment and follow the example of such worthwhile persons as Jane Addams, Thomas Nast, and George Jones. One person can accomplish much improvement if he is willing to spend his will and power freely. Life is more than mere living. We should meet the situations of life as they occur and not shun or shirk them through fear.

Christ is called the light and life of the world. Can we not try to follow his shining example and "carry a flaming torch of joy that others may feel that light and be rejoiced?"

Dear Editor:

Really, the mob at the basketball games is tremendous, the players are deafened by shrill cheers of encouragement, and there isn't enough room in the gym to hold everybody. There, that's off my mind! Don't take the above statements literally, I was being or trying to be very sarcastic.

What on earth is there about basketball games that makes almost everybody avoid them like the plague! Is it such agony to sit through a lively and exciting game? Don't you all think that it is a little discouraging to the teams to see their class represented by a measley five or six class-mates? They must be beginning to acquire an inferiority complex about their playing, thinking that they are such poor ones that no one can bear to come and watch them. It would help the players a good deal, if we showed more interest in the games. How about it, Connecticut?

Campus Character

An affectionate attachment to conferences characterizes this professor—so strong is his attachment to such, tradition has it, that one of the reasons for the building of a second class building was to furnish the above-mentioned with space wherein to confer with students without disturbing his associates. He is particularly admired and looked up to by his students owing to his perennial good nature and sympathetic understanding. His classes are noted for their pleasing informality and tolerance of undergraduate opinion (such opinion—no matter how startling—being received with nothing more than a surprised lift of the eyebrows, a widening of the eyes, and a startled "Oh-h-h!") "Now, ladies . . ." seems to be this character's favorite phrase. He exhibits a veritable passion for reading to the class (which reading, I might add, is greatly enjoyed by the class). He has a great store of amusing incidents concerning the early days of C. C. some of which, when the spirit moves him, he can occasionally be encouraged to impart. His only indulgence appears to be in shirts of a pink or pale green hue.

PROPER AGING

Tobacco in its natural state is harsh and strong. Though "cured" by the grower before sale, it is unsuited for use without further aging. During this aging period (which ranges in the case of Lucky Strike from 1½ to 3 years) important changes occur. These "Nature" changes result in the partial "smoothing out" of the original harsh qualities of the leaf. Our process of manufacture carries these improvements many steps further—as every Lucky Strike Cigarette exemplifies: A Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco.

"IT'S TOASTED"—Your throat protection

For centuries the world has gone to the Near East for its flavors and aromas and spices.

...and today Chesterfield imports thousands of bales of tobacco from Turkey and Greece to add flavor and fragrance to Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Turkish tobacco is expensive. The import duty alone is 35 cents a pound. But no other place except Turkey and Greece can raise tobacco of this particular aroma and flavor.

This Turkish tobacco, blended with our own American tobaccos in the correct proportions to bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco, helps to make Chesterfields outstanding for mildness and for better taste.

have something to communicate to a classmate each Sophomore follows her Junior and tries to keep anything of importance from getting past her eagle eye. They are hard to shake, these shadows, but we manage quite nicely when necessary. There are drawbacks, of course, as when at basketball games we merely go downstairs for a drink of water but are trailed by four or five Sophomores who look as though they thought we'd swallow a clue if they weren't careful. We get quite a lot of attention when we say the simplest things for no one knows, I suppose, when we might slip and say something we shouldn't about the Mascot. The possibility is so remote as to be non-existent, but the Sophomores seem to be the shining examples of that old saying "Hope springs eternal."

Mascot Hunt besides giving us a lot of fun and excitement also gets both classes better acquainted. After all you couldn't have a girl trail you every other day or so without at least getting a speaking acquaintance with her. Once in a while they go downtown with us or even over to Homeport when they are particularly fearful of something happening, and they are very pleasant company always. They are useful too, if we need a fourth for bridge. Anyway whether they find the Mascot or not, we've had a wonderful time with them, and they are as nice a lot of "Shadows" as one could find anywhere. Good luck to them!
